Visit Andorra

The Principado de Andorra does not have its own airport, but there are several international airports close to it. The most important international airports near Andorra are Barcelona, Girona and Toulouse. All these airports have daily buses to Andorra, the duration of the trip is approximately three hours.

The Principality of Andorra is a small country in terms of size, but the amount of artistic and cultural heritage, as well as the amount of beautiful landscapes it offers, is surprising.

Andorra la Vella is the capital and the nerve center of Principado de Andorra. The city stands out for its important commercial axis and its great gastronomic diversity, capable of satisfying the most select demands.

The city runs on the left bank of the Gran Valira riverbed, allowing the urban and natural environment to be closely related. In addition, in the very center of the city is the Central Park, a privileged place designed for rest and leisure.

In terms of trade, Andorra La Vella is presented as the main commercial hub of the Pyrenees. Its main avenues and the streets surrounding them form an immense open-air shopping gallery, where you can find everything from the most exclusive items to the latest world news at duty-free prices.

Andorra la Vella has a first-rate hotel offer, as it houses a wide variety of high-quality hotel and restaurant establishments.
